Born and raised in Los Angeles, Vanessa Van Petten got into deep water so often that her parents began reading parenting advice books. During one of her frequent groundings, Vanessa glanced through several books and spotted a big problem. The books were written by adults with no input from teenagers. At that moment, she decided to take matters into her own hands. "I promise I'll solve this problem," she said to herself. At the age of 17, she wrote her first parenting book from a teenager's perspective. After winning the Mom's Choice Award in 2009, she started her well-known website. There, Van Petten's 120 bloggers answer questions on everything from communication issues to cyberbullying for parents and teenagers. "We offer advice that really works well. Parents spread our unusual and sometimes controversial articles by word of mouth. This is actually what we aim for. Our brand is not only interesting but also life-changing," said Vanessa in one of her interviews. "We're going to keep on helping you. We're going to get over the problems and be strong together with our teens in the future," she added.
